When Burlington area residents feel the prospect of downsizing their home and belongings is just too big a task, the team at Estate Concierge is there to help.

Owned and operated by Caroline and Mike Maurice, Estate Concierge was a natural evolution of their award winning Maid of All Work house cleaning business established more than 20 years ago. As such, they have a team who can complete the often-monumental task of dealing with all of the elements of clearing an estate for the homeowner or loved one. From cleaning to handy work, sorting through papers to painting and staging Caroline and Mike, who are the first point of contact for clients, say the average estate takes two weeks to one month to clear up.

Not just for people who are downsizing, Estate Concierge can help families whose loved ones may no longer be living in the home as well as those who find themselves in a hoarding or overwhelming situation. This can be achieved through the extensive experience of Caroline who is also an accomplished life coach and personal organizer.

Together, Mike and Caroline have amassed a network of complementary businesses that enables clients to access the most reputable services. Estate Concierge will take care of selling items of value, divesting to other family members, shipping contents within or outside of the country, or disposing using the most environmentally friendly process. Where possible, Estate Concierge provides a benefit to the community. This is achieved by donating directly to those in need.

All done in-house, Estate Concierge’s services can be completely personalized to meet the needs of each client. What Caroline does recommend is contacting her as soon as possible, rather than doing “the busy work” themselves. “Most people don’t have the perspective, information or experience to do this, so just call and find out what’s available to you.”

Caroline, Mike and their team hold the clients’ best interest in mind and as such will do whatever it takes to deal with the estate situation on hand. Partnering with estate trust companies and with the ability to act fast under pressure, Estate concierge is ready for unique circumstances. Notwithstanding these services provide an answer to various downsizing needs; often clients are pleasantly surprised to reunite with forgotten letters or items that have sentimental value such as war medals.

Estate Concierge prides itself by standing out as a fast, effective service that provides the necessary organizing and downsizing services that provides the necessary organizing and downsizing services to help clients maximize their profits for selling.
